BIOGRAPHY

I completed my PhD in Social Psychology at the University of Milano-Bicocca in 2019, with a project on dehumanization. From 2020 to 2024, I spent four years as a postdoctoral researcher at the same institution, while also teaching social and group psychology at the University of Trento. Prior to this, I conducted research on dehumanization in political propaganda at Panteion University in Athens and contributed to a project on digital technologies and well-being at the University of Valle d'Aosta. I have also been working on food sustainability, with a particular focus on reducing household food waste. More recently, I held the position of assistant professor at Pegaso University, gaining experience in digital teaching strategies.
